

ILRI APM 2010 on

peterballantyne RT @ ILRI Livestock goods and bads: ILRI annual meeting kicks off in Addis Ababa SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Mario Herrero: 'The world has 1.7 billion animals. We need to manage demand for meat & milk & reduce consumption in places

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Nancy Johnson: 'Helping people avoiding falling into poverty is a big part of what ILRI does and it is not well-documented

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Delia Grace: 'Often the best place to act to control human disease is not in the human sphere but in the animal sphere.

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Carlos Perez: 'Agriculture is back on the donor agenda. It was off that agenda for the last 20 years.

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Carlos Sere, ILRI: 'We've always left integration of crops and livestock to NARS but we need upstream thinking about this.'

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Olaf Erenstein, of CIMMYT: 'The amount of biomass being fed to livestock rather than fertilizing soils is becoming a problem.'

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Delia Grace: 'Should we be spending $billions on emerging diseases like bird flu, which are of little import to poor people?'

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 Delia Grace: 'Livestock also serve as disease "sentinels", allowing us to act before a disease spreads from animals to people.'

SusanMacMillan #ilriapm2010 John McDermott, ILRI: 'We are all a bit allergic to the [broken] public-sector agricultural extension model in poor countries.'
